

Awajun Project in Peru

After searching for nearly a year Save the Rainforest found an NGO based in Northern Peru that was interested in helping Awajun communities establish a REDD+ project in the Peruvian department of Amazonia. Neotropical Primate Conservation (NPC) had previously worked with non-indigenous campesino communities in the area, and was enthusiastic about expanding its scope of operations. We put NPC in touch with Social Carbon. Social Carbon did a REDD+ feasibility study and determined that the Awajun territories qualified for a project and that over a ten year period the project would generate millions of dollars for the Awajun. The project is now in the implementation phase. Below is a shape file of an Awajun community territory.
