

Borari Maró Project in Brazil

In June, 2023 Save the Rainforest (STR) reached out to the NGO, Treesistance, about helping the Borari Maró community fund its innovative Forest Guardian program in the Brazilian state of Pará – the state undergoing the highest deforestation rate in Brazil. Shortly after STR set up a meeting between Treesistance and Wildlife Works, an implementer of REDD+ projects that provide long-term funding for forest stakeholders in the tropics. A feasibility study is now underway.
